Special DecisionLab Workshop

A gamified way of developing individual and group decision-making

by ActionLab Team

This training helps leaders to prepare for and make better decisions. DecisionLab training gives a radically different approach to decision-making through Poker. Playing poker and being in a business meeting is not that different. You have to make quick decisions under pressure, based on scarce information, about limited resources in an extremely competitive environment.

This interactive workshop using poker in decision-making, dating psychology or an exciting board game in management are the vehicles to key up the participant's passion to be ready for a "gamified" way of selfdevelopment.

Participants get to know the business-related strategic elements of poker during the learning process and practice, thereby developing a conscious way of decision-making and an analytic and systematic way of thinking as well – and thereby mitigating the influence of emotions and routine in decision-making processes.
